

Newsletter July 2023

Dear TRANSIT stakeholders,

July has come and gone so fast, so here is a quick update on what we have been up to. Our first 2 internships, aiming at collecting insight on the needs at industry level and transferring this knowledge back to academia have been completed successfully. Based on the principle of "learning by doing", the participant's experience during the two-week visit to the host company allows them to learn first-hand about the real challenges of the renewable energy industry in terms of best practices, needs, and expectations. The experience gained can then be transferred to multidisciplinary education and training programs. The internships were attended by Vasko from North Macedonia and Ivan from Montenegro who travelled to Cyprus (Wise Wire – Energy Solutions) and North Macedonia (EVN) respectively. Read more about their experiences here.

One of Transit project core activities is developing internships for international trainees, who visit a business related to energy transition to learn and discover weaknesses and strengths.

Meanwhile, our partners in Cyprus have been putting the final planning touches to our upcoming training and dissemination activity happening this September in the University of Cyprus. "Pathways Towards Carbon Neutral Power Systems: From Theory to Applications" will be an opportunity for different experts to talk about topics of great interest in the energy transition from a theoretical and practical point of view: from the path to resilient carbon-neutral power systems to real-time simulations; issues of extreme relevance in the current European energy landscape. Read more about it and register here.
